January 22, 2025

Our Popular Series is Back for Black History Month!

In honour of Black History Month, OASW is excited to bring back our Black Voices in Social Work series for on-demand access.

Members and non-members will gain free access to these popular recordings from our vault, spotlighting Black expertise, innovation, and Black-centric approaches in social work.

These offerings will be available from January 31 to February 28 only, so keep an eye on your inbox and be sure to request access to further your learning this February!

For Us, By Us: An Africentric Social Work Lens to Nurturing Black Youth

Amma Gyamfowa, MSW, RSW

Learn strategies to build spaces and practices that support the wellbeing of Black youth through an intersectional, Africentric, strengths-based and healing-centered lens.

Breaking Chains: The Complex Dance Between Resilience & Mental Health

Simone Donaldson, MSW, RSW

Explore how mental health has both been supported and compromised as a result of unhealed racial trauma, where resilience has become the coping mechanism.

Navigating Grief: Interventions for Individuals Experiencing Racism and Oppression

Nicole Perryman, MA, MSW, RSW, RP, CPT

Examine key themes in grief and loss within communities who experience racialized trauma, including how to assess and understand the impacts of grief, and explore culturally-informed interventions that can help individuals process grief in a healthy way.

Navigating Uncomfortable Realities: Social Work Placemaking in Corporate and Government

Candies Kotchapaw, MSW, BSW, CYW

Explore the art of placemaking in corporate and government institutions, including how social workers can carve a niche and showcase their value. Leave with actionable takeaways for creating a positive impact.

You have received this email because you are a valued member of OASW or you have signed up to receive updates on OASW Professional Development and Educational Opportunities.

View email in browser

unsubscribe